

Assignment – Empire of the Sun Layout

Create a Layout sequence based on boards from Empire of the Sun

The storyboards:

These panels are from a sequence in Empire of the Sun where a boy flashes his flashlight at docked military ships. He notices them flashing back lights at him right before they attack the harbor. The boy panics and thinks he caused the attack. His father comes in and tell the boy they are leaving.

Directions: Overall you will create a layout sequence based on the storyboards from a sequence of Empire of the Sun.

- A bedroom set has been given to you but it doesn't match the boards. You will have to manipulate the set model to get it to work.
- You will also need to create a simple exterior set for some of the shots looking through the window. You may use stock objects from other sources but they must work within the content of the story.
- Draw a top down of the sequence and determine line of action. (Fix the line of action if the boards break it)
- Edit the shots together to create a complete sequence. (use sequencer)

Note: Add additional shots to help the edit work better, have more clarity, tell the story in a more interesting way.

Deliverable:

- One MP4 file with all shots edited together to tell a story.
- 825x446 1.85 aspect ratio
- Use proper naming convention:
